

INTRODUCTION

The purpose of the International Assurance Limited PCC (“IAL”) Code of Ethics and Professional Responsibility is to set the ethics standards for business practice and individual business conduct within the Company. It seeks to assist, guide and direct all stakeholders with ethics deliberations, choices, decisions and conduct.

The Code shall be binding on all directors and staff members of IAL.

The Code is comprised of three components:

The Principles of Conduct, which serve to describe the qualities that staff members should aspire to in practicing their profession.
Standards of Conduct, which set out how staff members should direct their conduct in practising their profession while adhering to the Principles of Conduct.

The Consultancy Standards, which set out the processes according to which staff members should practise their profession.

These three components are interdependent and none of them takes precedence over another in the interpretation of the Code.

DEFINITIONS

Client: A person, persons or entity that engages an IAL staff member and to which professional services are rendered. For purposes of this definition, a staff member is engaged when, based on the relevant facts and circumstances, an individual reasonably relies on information or services provided by that staff member. Where the services of the staff member are provided to an entity, such as a company, trust, partnership or estate, the client is deemed to be the entity acting through its legally authorised representative.

Commission: The compensation paid by IAL to introducing intermediaries, calculated as a percentage of the premiums invested by the client.

Compensation: Any economic benefit that IAL or related party receives from performing their professional activities.

Conflict(s) of Interest: This occurs when IAL or a staff member’s financial, business, property and/or personal interests, relationships or circumstances may reasonably impair the Company or his or her ability to offer objective advice, recommendations or services.

Continuous Professional Development: Activities that develop and maintain the capabilities of staff members to perform competently within their professional environment.

Fee only: A method of compensation whereby only a fee is received from a client, with neither IAL, the staff member nor any related party receiving compensation contingent upon the purchase of any investment instrument. For this purpose, a ‘related party’ shall mean an individual or entity from whom IAL and/or the staff member derives any direct or indirect economic benefit, as a result of the party implementing a recommendation made by the staff member.

Fiduciary: One who acts in utmost good faith, in a manner that he or she reasonably believes to be in the best interest of the client.

PRINCIPLES AND STANDARDS OF CONDUCT

1. PRINCIPLES OF CONDUCT

IAL is committed to and requires staff members to adhere to the following principles:

Principle 1: Client First

Place the client’s interests first.

Placing the client’s interests first is a hallmark of professionalism, requiring staff members to act honestly and not place personal and/or IAL gain or advantage, economic or otherwise, before the client’s interests.

Principle 2: Integrity

Provide professional services with integrity.

Integrity requires honesty, fair dealing and truthfulness in all professional matters. Staff members are placed in a position of trust by clients and the ultimate foundation of that trust is their personal integrity. Allowances can be made for legitimate differences of opinion, but integrity cannot co-exist with deceit or subordination of one's principles. Integrity requires staff members to observe both the letter and the spirit of the Code.

Integrity further implies that staff members shall not:

- Give recommendations that they suspect, or reasonably should have suspected, to be false or misleading, and/or
- Conduct services in a dishonourable and disrespectful manner, and/or
- Omit or obscure information that clients, IAL or any other stakeholders rely on in the course of their professional endeavours.

Principle 3: Objectivity

Provide objective professional services.

Objectivity requires intellectual honesty and impartiality. Regardless of the services rendered or the capacity in which staff members' function, objectivity requires that they ensure the integrity of their work, manage conflict and exercise sound professional judgment.

Threats to objectivity may occur in various situations and forms, including, but not limited to, the following:

- A personal or economic interest of IAL, the staff member, or a person of close relationship or acquaintance with the staff member.
- The promotion of a specific opinion, service or product by a staff, due to personal or economic interest.
- Actual or perceived intimidation of a staff member to promote a certain opinion, service or product.

Principle 4: Fairness

Be fair and reasonable in all professional relationships. Disclose and manage conflicts of interest.

Fairness requires providing clients with their due, whatever they are owed, or what may be expected from a professional relationship and includes honesty, and disclosure of material conflicts of interest. It involves managing one's own feelings, prejudices and desires to achieve a proper balance of interests. Fairness is treating others as you would want to be treated.

Principle 5: Professionalism

Act in a manner that demonstrates exemplary professional conduct.

Professionalism requires behaving with dignity, showing respect and courtesy to clients, fellow professionals and others in business-related activities, and complying with appropriate rules, regulations and professional requirements.

The elements of professionalism include the following:

- To acquire and master intellectual skills acquired through continuing professional development and experience.
- To accept and embrace duties to the general public, clients and IAL.
- To render services of a high standard, in accordance with the Code and the applicable laws of Mauritius.

Principle 6: Competence

Maintain the abilities, skills and knowledge necessary to provide competent professional services.

Competence requires attaining and maintaining an adequate level of knowledge, skills and abilities in the performance of professional services. Competence also includes the wisdom to recognise one's own limitations and whether consultation with other professionals or referral to other professionals would be appropriate or necessary. Competence requires one to make a continuing commitment to learning and professional improvement.

Principle 7: Confidentiality

Protect the confidentiality of all client information.

Confidentiality requires client information to be protected and maintained in such a way that access is only allowed to those who are authorised or entitled, according to the laws of Mauritius. A relationship of trust and confidence can only be built on the understanding that the client's information will not be disclosed inappropriately.

Principle 8: Diligence

Provide professional services diligently.

Diligence requires fulfilling professional commitments promptly and thoroughly, and taking due care when planning, supervising and delivering professional services.

2. STANDARDS OF CONDUCT

Any failure to do so would be a contravention of the Code.
